New Plan Would Make Community Hospital of Grace Deere Velie Clinic

Monterey peninsula is offered the opportunity to have a community hospital, an open-staff hospital for the care of all types of medical cases. A recent meeting of the directors of the Grace Deere Velie metabolic clinic perfected plans for this offer. By these plans, all licensed physicians on the peninsula would use the hospital, none having any advantage as to salary, authority or precedence. The clinic would be run not as a private profit-making organization, but with the purpose of providing medical facilities for everyone with the exception of those eligible for aid in the county hospital.

A short history of the clinic will explain how this offer has come about. Mrs. Grace Velie Harris donated funds for the metabolic clinic in 1928 to carry on research in nutritional diseases, and to treat patients suffering from such ailments. When Mrs. Harris died in 1929, the building was but half completed, but funds left in her will provided for its completion and endowment. These funds were sufficient to carry out their purpose in perpetuity, but relatives of the founder have taken advantage of a California law under which they could take back any charitable gifts over one-third of the amount left by the will. This deprived sufferers from tuberculosis, cancer, etc., of approximately a million dollars that had been left for research in these diseases. This action, together with the depression, created financial difficulties for the clinic which the scheme now proposed will solve.

When the buliding was completed and equipped in 1930, less than $100,000 remained for maintenance. The medical research pursued during the first two years in accordance with the founder's wish had to be given up, being unproductive of money profit. Since charges to patients have always been moderate, in many cases less than the actual cost, and at times no charges at all have been made, the endowment fund has not been added to, but at the present time is reduced to a book value of approximately $30,000.

Two courses have been suggested: one, to close the clinic; this the present board of directors is loathe to do; it would mean the loss of general, inexpensive medical and hospital facilities for the whole peninsula. The second course is to increase revenues by adding a surgery and facilities for maternity and all other types of medical cases, turning the clinic into a general open-staff hospital for the use of all physicians. A large number of patients could then be treated at very moderate fees, these running as low as four dollars per day, inclusive. Private individuals who so wished could endow beds for the care of semi-indigent patients.

This plan with the support of the twenty or more physicians on the Monterey peninsula unaffiliated with any hospital, should add sufficient revenue for the hospital to carry itself. The addition of the operating rooms and their equipment would cost approximately $10,000. The present board of directors felt it inadvisable to use any of the remaining funds for the purpose, since their realization in cash at this time would mean a loss on their book value. The amount could be borrowed from the Federal Emergency Relief Commission, but the present directors again deemed it inadvisable to place any incumbrance on a property which is now clear. If the clinic is financed and made over in accordance with the proposed plan, the present directors have expressed their willingness to give up their places on the board to local lay and medical members.

The directors felt that if this community is sufficiently interested in having this property turned over to them in toto, together with the remaining endowment funds, it should be willing to raise the remaining $10,000 and guarantee any possible deficit for the first four months of operation. The funds could be raised by donations, guarantees or otherwise. This it seemed to the directors, was an extremely moderate condition for the gift to Monterey peninsula of a paid-up property of approximately $400,000.

Those interested and desirous of contributing their support are asked to communicate with their own physician, or with Dr. Joseph B. McCarthy, chairman of the finance committee. Physicians who have already interested themselves in the project are, Drs. Paul Hunter, Edwin Kehr, John R. Gray, Margaret M. Levick, David E. Matske, R. J. Cluen, R. J Kocher, Martin McAuley, W M. Gratiot, A. A. Arehart, H. M. Hoyt, Margaret Sweigart, W. L. Teaby, R. A. Workman, Frank Hart, S. W. Hastings, and J. A. Merrill.

Legalized Drinks Will Quench Carmel's Thirst

The merchants of Carmel may feel easier about selling liquors when they learn of a letter received by Chief of Police August Englund from the State Board of Equalization at Sacramento correcting an earlier letter on the same question.

It reads, "In furtherance of my letter of Jan. 9th, with reference to the sale of intoxicating liquors in Carmel, I advise that we are now in receipt of an opinion from the Attorney General which reads in part as follows:

" '. . . Since there is no prohibition in the State Liquor Control Act against granting licenses to applicants who desire to use their license privileges on premises upon which there is a deed restriction as to the sale of intoxicating liquors, it is my view that the board should grant licenses to all qualified applicants and that any question arising as to the restrictions contained in the deed to the premises is the concern between the grantor and grantee and should be determined solely by them,' "

"In line with this question, we are proceeding with the issuance of liquor licenses to all those Carmel residents whose applications are in proper form. Very truly yours, (Signed) Dixwell L. Pierce, Secretary."

There has been reluctance on the part of many business men to putting in stocks of liquors until the matter had been authorized by headquarters, and the foregoing shows that the state board considers it a question between the person who sold the land, who would be Frank Devendorf, and the present owners, and not between the city police and themselves.

Filipino Uses Knife on Host in Battle at Dawn

Paulino Mallare, Filipino houseboy of Carmel, was cut perhaps fatally by Tony Garcia, also Filipino, his guest in the Laumeister house on North San Carlos Street early Tuesday morning.

According to reports, Garcia was out on parole from Salinas on an open charge and his local friends were planning to have him sent back to the Islands, when he attacked Mallare with a knife. Mallare was able to get to the kitchen and seize a small meat cleaver and in the ensuing struggle furniture in the house was overturned, blood smeared generously and a general shambles created in a house decorated with photos of motion picture stars.

The next thing was when Mallare appeared on the porch of florist Charles A. Watson's residence at dawn and asked assistance, resulting in the police bringing the fire department salvage wagon and taking him to the Carmel hospital. Officers Englund and Guth then began a hunt for the attacker and the trail took them to Monterey. In the meanwhile, Calvin Hogle, on North Camino Real, a Carmelite of many years, heard a prowler and went out to find the lacerated Garcia climbing onto his roof in an apparent attempt to hide. Hogle was able to get him down and then took him to Marshal Englund, and after treatments for the cuts on his hands he was taken to Salinas and jailed on a charge of assault.

NEW HIGHWAY ZONING PLAN BEFORE OWNERS

Once more the question of restrictive zoning on the Carmel-San Simeon Highway is before the coast road property owners in the form of a preliminary draft of resolution by the Monterey County Planning Commission, being one of many such documents prepared in an effort to control future buildings and other improvements on the highway.

The present zoning idea, like previous ones, drew criticism particularly in two of its clauses. the first regulating distance of buildings from the road, and the second as to approval of exterior plans of buildings by the Board of Supervisors.

At the recent meeting in Salinas, attorneys represented the variors factions and lengthy arguments ensued over relative merits of the proposition. Russell Scott, appearing for clients frowning on the measures, questioned the legality of such a zoning act. Carmel Martin, Monterey attorney and chairman of the Commission, differed with him in that the legality of similar plans had been favorably looked on by courts and that the one under consideration would in his estimation receive judicial sanction.

Another meeting of the commission and property owners is set for January 29th, when counter proposals will be considered.

SEES LOCAL DANGER IN PRESENT DISPOSAL PLANT

The problem of the Carmel sewage disposal is nearing solution through the recent action of the sanitary board trustees when they sent to federal PWA officials plans for a disposal plant to take care of the regional needs for at least twenty-five years.

While the exact site of the disposal plant has not been selected, it is certain that the present inadequate equipment at the river mouth will be done away with, much to the betterment of sanitary conditions thereabouts. As an example of what health authorities think of the present conditions, a letter received from Dr. R. M. Fortier, County Health Officer, is cited.

He addresses the president of the Board of the local Sanitary District, and says:

"As health officer of Monterey County and of the City of Carmel, I wish to thank you and the members of your Board for your efforts toward improving the present sewage disposal system in your district.

"The proposed plan of installing a modern plant, large enough to care for all the land within the natural drainage area, will remedy a condition that is now a serious menace to the health and future development of a very desirable residential area.

"We have received numerous complaints about the present situation. These fall into several classes:

"1. New homes cannot be connected to existing sewer lines because present plant is inadequate.

"2. Additional tracts cannot be taken into the system.

"3. The laguna could be used for swimming if effluent from the modern plant was treated.

"4. Pollution of the beach and beach sands by present plant.

"We trust you will be able to start work soon and will gladly assist you in any way possible."

The board is planning to make announcement shortly of the election which will put before the taxpayers the answer to the problem, and give them the power to approve a bond issue of something in the neighborhood of $60,000, one-third of which will be taken care of by an outright grant by federal funds, the remainder to be taken over by the government at a moderate rate of interest over a long term.

The importance of this project to the future of Carmel cannot be overestimated, and energetic action by the board and by public-spirited citizens is expected to bring an overwhelming majority at the polls favoring the proposition.

But we made him crow.

Yes, neatness and cleanliness does pay.

ROGER COWLES TAKES OWN LIFE IN SAN FRANCISCO

Roger Cowles, who lived in this region while doing fiction writing three years ago, committed suicide in San Francisco by inhaling automobile exhaust gas last week following a spell of ill health.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cowles, of Santa Barbara and San Francisco, and had done a number of short satirical pieces that showed promise of successful future in the field of writing.

BUSINESS LICENSE ARRESTS MAY RESULT IN JURY TRIALS

The business license stir over arrests for non-payment of fees has now reached the stage where the accused are asking continuances to prepare defense, and where the city is bending all effort to draft a new ordinance that will prevent similar tangles in the future.

Edward G. Kuster, owner of the Golden Bough theater, which is temporarily the Carmel picture theater, and of the Community Playhouse, and a leader in things dramatic in our village over a period of years, was the latest to be served with a warrant for ordinance violation. The specific charge was that on Nov. 11th of last year he conducted, or allowed to be conducted, a dance recital in his Community Playhouse without having satisfied License Collector Gus Englund that he had complied with the law beforehand. The star of the evening, by the way, was the famous Japanese dancer Michio Ito.

Kuster pleaded not guilty when up for hearing on the 20th before City Judge George Wood, and asked for a jury trial which was first set for the 27th, then postponed until next week. He denies that he was wilfully and unlawfully conducting a theater as charged, and adds that in his mind the whole thing is a problem of legal definition. Having been a practicing lawyer he is reasonably sure, he states, of his ground and that the non-profit and educational features of his theatrical endeavors should put him in the license-exempt class with schools and art galleries.

The complaint against Carl Moll, of the Community Players, issued earlier in connection with their Community Theater productions, was dismissed when Kuster was served. Others involved in the alleged non-payment of license fees under Ordinance 54, are Lotta Shipley, of the Moorish Rug Shop, Bernice Fraser, of Fraser Looms and the Misses Denny and Watrous, of the art gallery and concert hall on Dolores Street, all of whom will probably ask for jury trials.

ENRIQUE BRAVO APPLIES FOR MARRIAGE LICENSE

Enrique Bravo, the Mexican Consul at Monterey, and Miss Doris B. Martin of San Francisco, are announced as filing application for marriage license at the Salinas Bureau yesterday.

The prospective bridegroom is well known in social circles on the Monterey Peninsula, and comes of a family noted in diplomatic and consular service. Recently he was active in settling strike troubles involving Mexican citizens in the San Joaquin Valley. Miss Martin is a sister of Mrs. Clair du Bois, 38 North Hampton Street, Berkeley.

ARCHDEACON HODGKINS TO SPEAK TUESDAY P. M.

The Archdeacon will tell about the Mission work in the diocese of California at the meeting of the reorganized Carmel Missionary Society to be held at All Saints Parish House at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 30. The public is cordially invited to attend.

A party of Carmelites and their friends, journeyed to Yosemite last week end to enjoy the winter activities. Skiing and skating were the major sports indulged in by the group. The group included, Mr. and Mrs. George Vye, Miss Hallie Sampson, Miss Edith Smythe, Mr. Ernest Perkins, Sr., of San Francisco, and Mr. A. C. LaFrenz.

SERMON AT LOCAL CHURCH AROUSES WIDE INTEREST

A sermon that is causing wide comment and approbation came from the pulpit of the Community Church last Sunday morning, when Rev. Melvin C. Dorsett, its minister, spoke on "Religion—Whither Bound?" It was a bold appeal for a broad religious viewpoint and the scientific method for its consideration.

Rev. Dorsett said in part: "For many years the chief energy of the evangelical churches has been used in describing religion, that of the liturgical churches in showing the symbols of religion. Today the need is for the actual introduction and application of religion. There are twenty seven branches of the Methodist church alone to testify to this misplaced energy.

"Now the church is being critically examined by society. Science rules in the field of thought, and all institutions are coming in for study. Science is a method and not any group of facts. Science proceeds by gathering all possible evidence by inductive proceedure, collating this to the issue in hand, and then evaluating. A scientist is of necessity a man of humble and reverent attitude. The search for, and rightful handling of truth makes it so. An opinionated or bigoted man cannot hope to find truth.

"Religion should desire to be studied by men, who use this method in the truly scientific spirit. This church showed in its reaction to the interest questionaire recently filled out that your interest is in facing the real problems of today and that you have less than no interest in the theological issues over which the church has fought for years.

"Religon is NOT dying out. It is in a transition period. This new day will not be one of mass appeal, with a juggler of emotions as its hero. The student of life will count rather than the salesman, promoter.

"The attitude will be neither the fawning loyalty to tradition or the hysterical hatred of the recent fugitive. The back-ground will be well studied. The Teachings of Jesus will stand out clear-cut and important. That, which has been said about Jesus will have value in the measure that it contributes positively to life today.

"The contented, over-ambitious, and selfish, who want God to be the chief bell boy, of the universe, will not care for this religion.

"Purpose will come when men learn REALLY that the law of the physical is the opposite of the law of the spiritual. Physical law says 'get—survival of the fittest.' Spiritual law says 'Give—self-devotion to a cause.'"

MAN SAID TO BE PUBLIC NUISANCE GETS SENTENCE

Barely escaping police and angry citizens, a man in gray ap, brown leather jacket and corduory pants, who has been making a public nuisance of himself on the sand dunes at times for the past several months, outran pursuers Wednesday afternoon and disappeared in the shrubbery along Scenic Drive.

A few minutes later police picked up a man several blocks farther south, and while he had no jacket and cap he matched the general description and gave evidence of having been running. He said that he lived in Monterey and knew Carmel people, but a check-up in his story caused police chief Gus Englund to take him to the northern city limits and tell him to keep going.

In the meanwhile, traffic officer Charles Guth was searching dunes and nearby streets for garments that might have been discarded in flight and found a dilapidated parked car registered in a name said to be Henry Dillon, of Monterey. Shortly after dark a man returned for the machine and became greatly agitated when questioned, but admitted that he was the one recently sent over the hill and that he had changed his clothes and returned for the car that he had earlier denied owning. He was then taken to Monterey and his patchwork story resulted in his being jailed for investigation.

Thursday morning he appeared in Carmel city court and after questioning by Deputy District Attorney John Thompson he was sntenced to six months in jail by Judge George Wood, which was suspended if he kept out of Carmel for one year, and there is strong belief that people on the beach will no longer be annoyed by the unidentified stranger.

WILL CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Carmel will join with Monterey in the peninsula wide celebration in honor of President Roosevelt's birthday by attending the gay "President's Ball" to be staged Tuesday night in the Bali Room of Hotel Del Monte.

The dance on Tuesday at Del Monte is one of the many events that are being planned on the Monterey peninsula to pay homage and respect to President Roosevelt. An unusual large attendance from Carmel is anticipated for the Del Monte affair.

The Bali Room will be gaily decorated with American flags and colors. Special music will be provided by Ed Fitzpatrick and his Hotel Del Monte orchestra.

CARMEL BASKETBALL TEAMS START WELL IN NEW SERIES

Carmel high school boys are entered in two community basketball teams that are sponsored by the Carmel Community Church and are already making good headway.

Team No. 2, coached by Ernie Perkins, played the Monterey Presbyterians last night at 7:30 in the Sunset School gymnasium, and the squad was chosen from eligible members including George Cooke, Vernon Wills, H. Wilder, Stanley Clay, Vernon Hitchcock, Hoshito Myamoto, Ray Hamilton, Lytton Hitchcock, Wayne Sellars, Ray Vanvelter, Melvin Baker and Maurice Grimshaw.

Team No. 1, coached by "Chub" Askew, will play Salinas Methodists tomorrow evening at 7:30 at the Methodist gymnasium in Salinas, and this team made a good showing last week against the Monterey Japanese team in the start of the series. Included in its members to be drawn from are George Petty, Gordon Bain, Rupert Kendall, Clarence Dodd, Bob Dalton, Joe De Amoral, Clifford LeNeve and L. Whitcomb.

BOB DALTON ENTERED IN S. F. AMATEUR MATCHES

Bob Dalton, the well-known amateur boxing son of Jack Dalton, of Carmel, has entered the bouts of the Pacific Association Amateur Boxing Championships to be held in the Civic Auditorium under auspices of Twin Peaks Natives and Pacific Association next month.

He will have to fight opponents in the 126 pound class because he is just above the 118 pounders, and so will have to give everything he has to keep in the going. From the way he has handled himself in local rings against experienced opponents, however, his backers predict that he will come through on top.

First fights will be on Wednes- 12th, then on Saturday, the 17th day, the 7th, next on Monday, the and the wind-ups and finals on Monday, the 19th. Entries from a wide area have been received, and excellent matchings will be had under competent supervision of bay region experts.

FAMED HAWAIIAN MOVIES TO BE SHOWN AT HOTEL

Carmelites can tour the Hawaiian Islands on Monday night at the Hotel Del Monte through motion pictures in sound and color to be presented by George Armitage, executive secretary of the Hawaii Tourist Bureau. These pictures, which are perhaps the most striking ever taken in the Islands, will be free to the public, and a large attendance is expected.

Showing will begin at eight o'clock in the downstairs auditorium.

NEEDLE EXPERTS CAN HELP AT RED CROSS

Mrs. Robert Stanton, head of the local Red Cross, asks for women to volunteer for sewing one or two afternoons a month on pajamas, working men's shirts and little girl's dresses to be made from outing flannel and printed cotton material furnished by headquarters, and to be distributed among families urgently in need.

Interested persons are asked to get in touch with the Chapter in its offices in the lower floor of the Pine Inn, at Ocean and Monte Verde, between 10:30 and noon, or 2 and 4 afternoons, or phone there by calling Carmel 382.

Mrs. Harry Raine and children of Jerome, Arizone arrived in Carmel this week to make their home here. Mr. Raine is on the Pine Cone staff.

Winifred Christie Plays Double Keyboard Piano

An attraction to interest the scientist as well as the musician and lover of music magnificently played is Winifred Christie playing the Double Keyboard Piano, which the Denny-Watrous Gallery is presenting in their hall on Dolores Street this evening.

"Magical effects, ethereal beauty, an instrumental wonder" wrote Ernest Decsey of Mme. Christie playing Debussy on the Double Keyboard Piano, and her Bach, Adolf Weissman compared to "now a string quartette," now a "giant organ." Pianissimos unheard on the present keyboard, fortissimos swelling to cosmic grandeur, this phenomenal pianist with her phenomenal instrument reveals what before virtuosi have only dreamed of.

Strange as it may seem, Franz Liszt n 1838 prophesied the double keyboard, writing in the "Revue et Gaette Musicale": The piano is more and more extending its horizon . . . We play arpeggios like those of the harp, long sustained notes like those of wind instruments . . . Progress in piano manufacture will certainly supply those contrasts of tone which are lacking and will lead naturally to the creation of pianos with two key boards which will carry all before them in the realm of music." It is just this contrast in tone above all else which the Moor Double Keyboard Piano has achieved, and which will be thrillingly demonstrated in Mme. Christie's playing of the Bach "Chaconne" tonight.

Winifred Christie has chosen a program which shows the great increase in dynamics of which the Moor piano is capable. It is the program she played in the Veteran's Auditorium, San Francisco, last Sunday, and at Mills College on Monday. It is as follows:

Bach	Chaconne
Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Handel	Brahms
Goldfish
Bach	Chaconne
Brahms	Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Handel
Debussy	Goldfish
Debussy	Prelude
Godowsky	Gamelon

COLTON AIDS PLAYERS WITH DRAMA "NINE PINE STREET"

By Winsor Josselyn

"Nine Pine Street" last night became the address of the Carmel Community Playhouse when the Players put on that grim drama of New England, by John Colton and Carlton Miles, which was based on a book "The Celebrated Case of Lizzie Borden" dealing with a famous unsolved double murder of the nineties.

Perhaps the most interested member of the capacity audience was John Colton, who came up from Hollywood to aid Director Byington Ford at the final rehearsals, and who later said that here was another good example of what the serious little theater workers could do with solid drama.

"A production of our play such as this," he went on, "proves again what I have long contended: that the little theater has been a bridge to take drama over the difficult period of the past several years when it was threatened with extinction. It has kept alive and has developed the vital spark much as monasteries centuries ago kept alive learning, and whatever help playwrights can give the movement is only justly due."

In commenting on the play itself, he said at first they feared strong criticism from the churches. but this did not develop, although relatives of the accused murderess at one time were going to take court action.

"Don't let people deride the amateur actor," he said. "Where did some of your outstanding professionals come from but the amateur ranks, and just when did their artistry pass the line between the amateur and the professional? Last night I saw moments of sheer excellence in your production, moments that were professional in every sense of the word." You will remember that Colton was also author of "Rain" and "Shanghai Gesture."

A full review of the play will be in next week's issue, but we will give an outline of the distinguished cast, and remind you that tonight and tomorrow night will be your last opportunity to see "Nine Pine Street."

Olga Fish was the suspected murderess, Effie Holden; her scheming stepmother was done by Sibyl Leonard; Mary Marble Henderson was her younger sister, and Millard Pierson did the harsh Father, Edward Holden. Ivy Van Cott took Annie, the outspoken hired girl; Betty Morse was the ailing Mrs. Borden; Chester Shephard was salty Captain Tate; Lloyd Weer was Warren Pitt, and Richard Masten did Dr. Powell, the family physician.

Marion Ford and Ruth Thompson were inquisitive neighbors who bounced in and missed nothing; Hildreth Masten was the wife of Dr. Powell; Eugene Watson took the Rev. Appleton; H. L. Bothund was Lt. Middleton, of the police; Helen Vye was the French maid, Ernestine, and Lucien Jones, lead in many a production for the Players, did Martin Lodge, the young Boston reporter.

Tickets are at popular prices and may be had at Staniford's Drug Store, or at the box office just before show-time, and demand has made good ones scarce. We suggest early reservations.

CARMEL BUSINESS CENSUS IS PART OF NATIONAL PLAN

A business census is being conducted in Carmel by Margaret Clark, long a resident here, for the CWA to get accurate check-up on improved business and employment conditions as a part of the national plan to ascertain results of the President's recovery drive.

Working under R. T. Stevens, Census Supervisor for the district Miss Clark is giving merchants and other local business men opportunity to co-operate in this vital work, and the data she asks is kept in strict confidence. Starting last week, she has covered the major portion of her territory and expects to file her report by Feb. 2. She states that almost universal response has been had, and believes that the few firms that have been unwilling to assist have done so only through misunderstanding of the national scope of the idea and of the value that their information represents. All firms excepting real estate brokers, professional people and contractors will be included in the census.

LABOR BUREAU MEETS TO OFFER NEW CWA PROJECTS

The Tuesday night meeting of the Carmel Labor Bureau, of which George Whitcomb is chairman, had brought before it further details of the plan proposing a footbridge on North Lincoln Street for a CWA funds request, and this will be placed before the council at its next regular meeting.

The Bureau is composed largely of unemployed skilled workers, and maintains a list of its members in the offices of the Triangle Realty Company, on South Dolores Street, so that by calling that firm information may be had by persons wishing work done.

Next meeting night is this coming Tuesday at eight o'clock in the City Hall.

Next week no knotty problems will be presented for solution to the audiences at the Community Playhouse. The play will be a happy little comedy, laid in famous Minetta Lane, Greenwich Village, in the heart of old New York. It was written in Hollywood by William Farrell, a young Irish actor and playwright who came over with the "Journey's End" company several years ago and became one of the brilliant little Hollywood group organized as the Actors and Authors Guild. Edward Kuster is directing the production, which will be witnessed on its first night, Wednesday, by a number of "scouts" from the Hollywood motion picture studios.

There are only six characters. The heroes are two awkward and lovable cubs, William and Henry, who share a studio and eke out a precarious existence. One is a poet (or is he?) and the other a composer. As to the quality of the "music" turned out by William, possibly the less said at this time the better. Betty, a charming lass—and, by the way, something new in chorus girls—lives across the hall. She is a sort of housemother to the two babes-in-the-wood, William and Henry, putting things to rights when and how she can. Of course they are both head over heels in love with her, but each strives to outdo the other in the chivalric intention of handing her over to the other. At length Betty, tired of being batted back and forth between them, decides to—well, what do YOU think?

Then there is Grace, living in an expensive apartment on the first floor, dilettante and "atmosphere" absorber, who specializes in impecunious and attractive young artists; and Jake, on the second floor, a breezy go-getter who has cleaned up so much on promoting a Marathon dance contest in Hoboken that "half New Jersey's broke." Jake gets ready to produce a musical comedy, with Betty as the star. The writer of this article shudders to say it, but William and Henry are unanimously elected to write the music and the "book"! What happens after that must be seen on the stage next week to be fully appreciated.

A new character appears, an "M. D., almost," Isadore by name, who furnishes the final surprise of the evening. If Mr. Farrell, comedian, were not in Shanghai at the moment, one might suspect him of creating this particular tidbit of an acting part for his own individual use. As far as we know, Isadore has no prototype on the stage of Europe or America.

Some new faces will be seen in the cast. Vera Hunter will play Betty; George McMenamin and Tom Crosthwaite will portray William and Henry respectively; Janet Large is cast for Grace; Everett Sholund, late leading man in "Roadside," will play Jake; and Ralph James will make his bow to Carmel as Isadore.

"Twenty Lascivious Turtles" will start Wednesday, instead of the usual Thursday. Saturday night will be omitted, in deference to the Gieseking concert at Sunset School Auditorium, and an extra performance will be given Sunday night. Owing to the fact that royalty on this production has been waived, reduced admission prices have been established. Come to the Playhouse next week and forget your troubles.

GIESEKING TO CLOSE MUSIC SOCIETY WINTER SERIES

The Carmel Music Society Winter Famous Artist Series will come to a brilliant and triumphant conclusion on Saturday evening, February 3, when Gieseking, the incomparable pianist, will give a recital in the Sunset School Auditorium.

It is the policy of the Carmel Music Society to have different artists each season, so that Spalding, Horowit, Meisle, Werrenrath, the London String Quartet, Elman, Kreutberg, to mention but a few, have been heard in the little village of Carmel. But the Carmel Music Society has made one exception to its rlle of "no repeats." Walter Gieseking, pianist, is now to play on the Society's Series for the third time, and all who have heard him before will be there and those who missed him are making every effort to arrange to go on February 3. And so it has been in all the cities of the world. Everywhere Gieseking has been hailed as the "incomparable," "the greatest," the "pianistic magician"—such superlatives as are universally bestowed upon those who are so exceptional in their gifts and attainments as to really deserve them.

Gieseking loves Carmel, and word comes that he is looking forward to seeing the little village again.

SUNSET SCHOOL NEWS
By Lee Van Atta

Last Friday morning at eleven o'clock another assembly was held at Sunset. The Fourth Grade told the story of early California. Several songs were sung and a Mexican dance was given by a Fourth Grade girl. The candidates for Student Body offices gave their speeches telling what they would do if put into office. Those speaking were: Freer Gottfried, Jack Pelton, Doris Crossman, Joyce Uell, Edgar Leslie, Homer Levinson, Norris Thompson, Pat Thompson, Betty Wilson, Dick Tevis and Roger Fulton.

Midyear promotion came with the report cards, which were issued Monday, January 22, 1934.

The evening shop class still has its regular Monday evening shop program. In the last clay firing some interesting pieces came out showing the form of the coils.

A very interesting Social Studies exhibit is now in the Seventh Grade classroom. The exhibit shows Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Grade social studies work. Also on exhibit are Seventh Grade book covers on the Middle Ages These are covered with a coating of linseed oil, which makes them look very attractive. This exhibit was done under the direction of Miss Baer, art instructor.

The Seventh Grade, under the direction of Mr. Gale, English teacher, is writing a play based on the famous poem, "The Courtship of Miles Standish" by Henry W. Longfellow. This project will cover two weeks of written English.

In the student body election last Tuesday, the following were elected: For President, Dick Tevis; Vice President, Doris Crossman; (As it is not known whether there was a majority or not, the result will be published next week) Secretary, Norris Thompson; Business Manager, Jack Pelton. All these Student Body Officers either belong to the Seventh or Eighth Grades. For Faculty Adviser, Miss A. M. Baer was elected. About one hundred seventy-five voters took part in the election.

Card of Thanks

Mrs. Mamie Whalen, Ethel Higuera, Jess, Howard and Albert Martin and other members of the family herewith express their thanks and appreciation to friends who rendered service, showed kindness and expressed sympathy over the passing away of their mother, Mrs. Carrie B. Martin in Carmel last week.

Madam J. M. Pirenne, who has made her home in Carmel for the past two and a half years is leaving during the week for Palm Springs, where she will make her home and continue with her French teachings.

James Cagney Tells of Motion Picture Needs

He's in 'em—and yet he's agin' 'em. That's a summary of Irish James Cagney, hard guy of the picture screen (who says that he wasn't hard professionally, until he hit Hollywood), a frequent visitor to Carmel and close friend of Lincoln Steffens.

During a recent chat, the subject of the little theater brought up this picture question.

"People must have theater in one form or another," said the abrupt young man of the tan hair and angular features. "The movie brought about the near demise of the stage, and the rise of the little theater certainly indicates a weakening of the movie drawing power. Pictures in their present state evidently have been found wanting, and extinction, or near extinction, awaits.

"When that happens something new, but not necessarily better, will come to take their place. Why, every story you see on the screen is the same old story, and except for some peculiar living quality that happens more or less accidentally in performances or direction, the whole thing is as dead as the film it's printed on."

Forceful gestures, clipped words, a quick snickering laugh that held little humor, sudden, stormy lines between mobile brows that sheltered intense hazel eyes.

"There are too many don'ts in making a picture. You can't show this and you can't show that, all of which necessarily means stifling of creative effort. I think that the talking picture has a definite mission and usefulness, but this mission has not been fully exploited. In the present state it is just entertainment of a sort, but it can be a great influence for education as well. That I look forward to.

"Once they've really found the pattern," he finished with a brief nod, "then anybody can do it. But they've got a lot of grief yet before they find it."

His first trip to Carmel was due to Steffens. Some time ago Steffens found that son Peter, aged nine, had become a hero-worshiper of movie star Cagney because of his hard-socking fists. This must not go on, for Peter must hero-worship only one person—his father—and should take the rest of the world at its meager worth, and so Steffens sent a message down to Cagney, telling of his difficulty and wanting to pay a disillusioning visit.

Cagney wired back, "Come." And the net result of meeting him and seeing his pictures made, was that it only doubled Peter's admiration for the hard-socker.

"I said I'd fix that," continued Cagney in now happy staccato. "I said I'd come to Carmel and take a house. I did it, and saw him almost every day—taught him to leoi with his left and to pass a football, and even showed him to tap-dance. But things just got worse, and about then I had to go back to Hollywood. This present trip, though, has brought results."

In other words, when Cagney arrived and Peter found him there on return from school, the meeting was casual in the utmost. Questioned, Peter said, "Oh, I wasn't nearly so excited as I thought I'd be," and dashed on out to join the neighborhood youngsters playing ball in the street.

Street ball-playing reminded us that somewhere we'd heard of Cagney playing his first ball in the streets of eastside New York, in the days before he got mixed up with the Broadway musical stage.

"Sure," he said, and again the quick grin. "And today when I see kids playing ball in those traffic crowhed streets I get scared plenty. They never look around when a truck comes up behnd them. They know just where it is and step aside and let it pass, like this"—and he stood with hands on knees, then deliberately sidestepped a pace to the left, eyes still front, and then back to the playing position—"and I don't know yet how they do it."

He played semi-professional foot ball in Central Park, and also boxed, and has kept himself in such trim that even as he stood there in tan sweater, brown suede jacket, striped flannels and white oxfords, he could give anybody in the hundred and fifty pound class a lively work-out with the gloves.

He seldom goes to pictures. Once in a great while he sees one of his own when he has a definite object in mind, but you gather that otherwise he has little time for the whole picture business—except to put in long studio hours of cramming life as he sees it into such inert things as little strips of celluloid.

Why be NERVOUS

There's a time-tested, harmless, preparation, compounded by a specialist in nervous disorders, for the relief of Sleeplessness, Irritability, Nervous Indigestion, Nervous Headache, Restlessness, the Blues and Hysterical Conditions.

During the more than fifty years since this preparation was first used, numberless other nerve sedatives have come—and gone. But the old reliable has always been in constantly increasing demand.

Only one medicine fits this discription.

DR. MILES NERVINE

If you are nervous, don't wait to get better. You may get worse. Take Dr. Miles Nervine. You can get Dr. Miles Nervine—Liquid and Effervescent Tablets—at your drug store.

NOTED PAINTINGS ON DISPLAY AT GALLERY

At the new gallery of the Carmel Art Association, extensive improvements of the stone walk, steps and walls are now under way, and will go far toward increasing the charm of the setting.

The exhibit of more than two dozen striking paintings donated by prominent members of the Association toward the building fund, is now in its second week and will continue for some weeks more in view of the active interest shown by the public. Since the opening of the gallery a short while ago, hundreds of spectators have visited this art center and thus proven the contention that Carmel needed a building to be the home of peninsula art.

Distinctive signs are being made to hang in prominent places on the main streets so that strangers will have little difficulty in locating the building on north Dolores Street, and next summer will find the gallery well established as a mecca for lovers of our creative work.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"He is the Rock, his work is perfect: for all his ways are judgment: a God of truth and without iniquity, just and right is he." These words from the Book of Deuteronomy comprise the Golden Text to be used tomorrow in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Truth." Included among the Scriptural elections will be: "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands. Serve the Lord with gladness: come before his Lord is good; his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth to all generations." (Ps. 100: 1, 2, 5)

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scrptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "In Science, Truth is divine, and the infinite God can have no unlikeness. Did God, Truth, create error? No. 'Doth a fountain send forth at the same place sweet water and bitter?' God being everywhere and all-inclusive, how can He be absent or suggest the absence of omnipresence and omnipotence? How can there be more than all;" (p. 287.)

Mrs. Albert Hyde and daughter Miss Betty Hyde, left Tuesday morning for Los Angeles. Mrs. Hyde plans to return tomorrow, while Betty intends to make an indefinite stay. Their Arizona trip was postponed on account of Mr. Hyde's sickness, but it is expected they will be able to leave shortly.

Says Benjamin Franklin of Philadelphia:
(On death) "Our friend and we were invited abroad on a party of pleasure which is to last forever. His chair was ready first and he has gone before us. We could not all start conveniently together; and why should you and I be grieved at this, since we are soon to follow, and know where to find him."

Says Ben Franklin of Carmel-by-the-Sea:
"In my barber-shop on Dolores Street just around the corner from Ocean Avenue, I have three chairs. Step in with your friend and try one"

A PROFESSIONAL TIP

"Anything that makes the car run better, makes my job go smoother," said a professional driver who trades with us. And the things he watches closest are: spark plugs, oil filter, and valve oiler. Not a bad idea for the man who drives his own car to keep an eye on that mechanical trio, too—it has a lot to do with the performance of any motor. Let us show you these items when you drive in for Super Shell.

HAND CUFFS ON ART

The spectacle of officials of Carmel bringing criminal action against the producers of amateur dramatics, the owners of little theaters and of art galleries and the proprietors of handicraft shops that have helped make the village world-famous, is one to cause wide-eyed amazement everywhere. That any city should arrest and seek to punish by fines and imprisonment the very ones who have built the town, is not believable. The word that is flashed across the continent that warrants have been issued and trials set for the men and women whose work for Carmel has helped give the town reputation and population will mark for many the turn in our town from the artistic to the commercial.

That the whole affair hinges upon a license collection of less than one hundred dollars makes it more preposterous. That the charges are made at the very time that a change in licensing is being considered, and the ordinance under which charges are made is up for amendment, adds significance.

Technically, the defendants in the various cases are guilty, and will probably be convicted by the court. Edward G. Kuster, who has spent a large fortune in promoting amateur dramatics in Carmel, who has built one theater, the Golden Bough, that became famous, and purchased another to keep it going as a civic institution, has violated the law in not paying the city for the privilege of losing his money; Dene Denny and Hazel Watrous, who gave us free art exhibits when there was no other place in Carmel to hold them, and whose gallery has been for years the center of musical appreciation here, have allowed the license fee to go delinquent; Bernice Fraser, with her weaving looms that have attracted many a visitor to the village, has neglected to give the city its share of her small earnings. Quite true, and they are undoubtedly guilty as charged. But they are not criminals, and to place that stigma of arrest upon them is one of the things that Carmel must ever regret. It is a blot upon our reputation, and the worst bit of press publicity that has ever been broadcasted from the village.

LEGERDEMAIN

Life, the arch magician,
With feats of legerdemain,
Conducts a fantastic performance
With love, and joy, and pain.
Compounded within a saucepan,
Of common earthen design,
From which is pulled a rabbit;
A death's-head, bottles of wine.
The crowd looks on applauding,
Nor guesses the real intent,
And dazzled with admiration,
Is fooled to the top of its bent.

—Mary Wallace Kirk.

"THE GLORY THAT WAS GREECE"

One with the restless tempo upon the street.
Discordant life that clangs with frenzied beat,
Though flanked by hurried formulas of steel,
Which rise triumphantly with impressive zeal
Where sharp and jagged strength would spear the sky,
The troubled pattern is unresolved, awry.

Then with what peace I come upon a row
Of Grecian columns, magnificent, and slow
With harmony attained once long ago,
Communicating lofty certitudes,
And philosophic calm that her eludes;
That upward surge of man's collective soul
Expressed in form when Beauty was fashioned whole.

—Mary Wallace Kirk

WORTHLESS FLOWER

Thus, flat upon the knees, the two hands pushing by
A stone-cold grass, tenuous arrow on arrow,
Seeking the worthless flower that shall die
Before the first frost pierces to the marrow
The corncane and the apple and the sparrow,
Before the morning's rain is dry;
Snapping and gathering, nor once questioning why—
What more arrogant futility?
Who more ineffectual than I?

—Ben Belitt

PRIDE IN OURSELVES

We are getting rather proud of our printing department, the Pine Cone Press, as we call it affectionately. It has been operating only three months, but already we have turned out work that is artistically and mechanically satisfying. More and more the people of Carmel are discovering us, and learning that just as good printing as can be done anywhere will come out of our shop.

Job printing can be either a job or an art. If the compositor who makes up the layout hasn't a touch of the divine spark in his cosmos, it's a job. He has to know his trade, too, for nothing is more technical than printing, but that artistic feeling makes the difference. The Pine Cone Press is fortunate in having an artist in its printer.

Nor does it cost any more to secure that quality in your printing. In fact, our shop is as low in its prices as many a worse one hereabouts. With the Pine Cone to print every week, covering the cost of the overhead, we are able to make fairer prices than the shop which must depend entirely upon job work to meet its expenses. This advantage is shown in our charges to you. We are low in price, not cheap.

Promptness in service is another important point claimed by us. While we operate under NRA conditions, and pay the Union scale of wages we have arranged our hours so that the shop is open six days a week. It gives us opportunity to serve you with dispatch on those occasions when prompt service is an essential. And we make it our pleasure to give you help in your need.

Every user of printing in Carmel should make the test of the local shop before going outside the village for his work. There has been too much Carmel printing done in foreign parts in the past. The money paid for it has ceased to circulate in Carmel. It has done a real injury to the local business. The Pine Cone Press has a weekly payroll that goes out directly to the merchants of the village, and speeds up business that much. The money you spend with us, comes back to you. If we charge you no more, and do as good work for you as the outsider, you have an added benefit by trading at home, for as we grow, so will our wage-roll increase and homes will be rented, and grocers, butchers and bakeries be enriched.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

"Heard in the Barber Shop," a column published in the Whittier, Cal. News, has this to say of Carmel:

"That town of Carmel must be a beautiful place," said the Man Who Was Waiting for a Chair. "Laguna Beach could have been just as beautiful if the people of that town had followed the example of the Carmel folks, and not tried to ape a city. In Carmel the streets and avenues are narrow and the pavements are gravel and oil, and the gutters for the water take the place of sidewalks and curbs. There are few street lights and the residents walk in the middle of the road. It is an unspoiled bit of California and a delightful place to live," said the Man With the Paper.

According to the Taos, New Mexico, Valley News, "La Posta," the spacious Taos residence built years ago by Mrs. Mabel Luhan, and which has never been lived in, is to be occupied soon by Mr. and Mrs. John Ganson Evans. The house occupies the center of a magic circle of trees where the old reservoir and posthouse used to be, about a mile south of Taos on the Ranchos Road, and it is said to be haunted.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans are spending the winter in Carmel but their plans now are to return to Taos early in the spring, furnish La Posta, and live there during the following summer, if not longer. They intend to make Taos their home for at least a part of each year in the future.

"La Posta" was built slowly over a period of years and has been completed for several years now, so that the amusing and informal ceremony at the time the corner-stone was laid, when only the foundation was finished, is almost ancient history and forgotten. Father Giraud, Dr. Martin, Judge Kiker, James Read and Dr. Muller were among the leading citizens who officiated at the corner-stone laying, and it is said that among the heterogeneous collection of objects sealed in the corner-stone at this mock ceremony were coins, minted that year, a legal document of amusing wording, current copies of the Taos Valley News and the Laughing Horse—and a "latest model" set of false teeth.

During the many seasons that the great house has lain vacant, an accumulation of legends has gathered around it; and among these is the story that the owner of the false teeth haunts the house nightly in search of his lost set.

The Old Montgomery Block in San Francisco celebrates its eightieth birthday this year, which gives Idwal Jones the opportunity to tell of it charmingly in last Sunday's Chronicle. He notes its four particular claims to fame as (a) it is full of artists. (b) James King of William was shot before it. (c) It survived the fire.(d) It was where you got Pisco Punch. Also Idwal Jones takes notice of the one-time occupancy of John C. Catlin in a suite of the building, saying:

"Three adjoining rooms on the third floor are presumably sacred, for they were occupied by no less renowned a person than John C. Catlin, Stidger's former associate, who abandoned the practice of law to hammer iron in Carmel and later become its Mayor. Also he wanted to be as near the thundering surf and the seagulls as possible."

How many other Carmel people have been tenants of the Old Montgomery Block I do not know, but David Alberto was born in it quite a number of years ago, and in 1897-1898 Bertha and I occupied a studio —we called it that—on its top floor, paying six dollars a month rent. Our room had a long French window that opened out over a fish market on Merchant street and had to be kept closed a lot of the time because of the fish odor. It had a little fireplace, or grate, in one corner, and was lighted by gas-jets, one of which also served to do much of our cooking.

The running water was down the hallway outside, as was the lavatory. There was no elevator then in the building, and the stairs were many and long. Duncan Nichols and his Pisco punches had not moved into the Jackson street corner downstairs. Coppa's restaurant, afterwards made famous, occupied the Merchant street corner. There was a second-hand book shop on Jackson street that gradually absorbed the library I had slowly acquired, paying me fifteen cents per volume for it.

This Oliver Perry Stidger, whom Idwal Jones makes the hero of his tale of the old structure, must have come to live and manage the building after we moved away, for there was an old Italian to collect the rents. He also served as janitor.

There were not many artists in the building then, although a few studios were scattered through its several floors. J. O. Brubaker lived right across the hall from us, and a lifetime friendsship was developed there. Most of the offices were occupied by consulates of South and Central American republics, small attorneys, tailors, a canary raiser, lapidaries, and a strange conglomeration of men who made the upper floors their bachelor homes, and had no visible means of support.

The Old Montgomery Building has been remodeled again and again since I knew it, and is perhaps as modern today as it was in 1897, as compared with its neighboring structures. One usually walked upstairs in buildings under five stories high in 1897, and didn't expect to find elevators and electric lights and bathrooms scattered around generously. We considered our situation a pleasant and comfortable one, and enjoyed our year there extremely.

Francis (Frenchie) Murphy drops through town now and then from up north where he and his brother R. M. are rebuilding the family house that burned last year. The location is in the heart of a several thousand acre tract in Shasta County, from one point of which they can see both Mt. Shasta and Mt. Lassen on clear days.

The house will have a large central room and many smaller ones leading from it, with lava-rock foundation and split peeled-pine log walls. The chimney will be selected lava-rock and when finished will weigh up to a couple dozen tons, as anybody who has ever lifted a piece of such material knows. Foundation for this essential part of the house was made of concrete reinforced with the remnants of plumbing, bedsteads and even the metal from the piano.

"On stormy nights I wouldn't be surprised to hear music coming from those old piano wires," said the ex-Carmelite in all seriousness.

When he was with us, and conducting a fuel business at 5th and Mission, he was one of the kingpin Abalone Baseball athletes, and we once shooting in after a pop fly never tire of telling how he was from his position at shortstop, found that he coudn't stop at the players' bench and instead of crashing into the people, did as neat a hand-spring entirely over the bench as you ever saw in a gymnasium. Sems to us, too, that some women and children had broken rules and were sitting on the bench, too.

He has since then done some farming in the middle west, and now is going to call home up there in the shadow of Shasta, and from what he tells of the country it is country that is country.

Caroline Decker, the diminutive, blonde labor agitator who is frequently a guest at the Lincoln Steffens-Ella Winter home, was recently the center of a little newspaper misunderstanding.

She was seen in front of a Carmel newsstand reading a paper from Los Angeles, She was reading a heavily headlined article that told of the presence in Southern California. or maybe Arizona, of the famous (or infamous) Decker girl labor agitator at that very moment. She had not been actually glimpsed went on the account, but there was ample proof that for the past week she had been raising ned among the workers.

Miss Decker was seen to shake her head and fold the paper and put it under her arm, but whether her thoughts were on the opportunity misesd, or on the impossibility of being two places at once, no one asked her.

The Thatcher place in Hatton Fields has a rail fence with a history. Around part of the property has been built a zig-zag fence of the stake-and-rider variety—if I am right—every bit of which has seen stirring days in California when the gold rush was on.

The rails of which the fence is made were brought from the old Murphy ranch near Redding, in Shasta county, and had done service there in the same capacity for more than forty years. Put together without nail or spike or any binding, the split redwood served to protect the pioneer's fields from invasion by deer and the wild things of the forest when California was making history, half a century ago.

H. E. Rogers brought the rails from Redding in a truck, and laid up the fence just as it had been on the Matthew Murphy ranch, whence he had carried it away. Frenchy Murphy, one of the present owners of the ranch, looked over the finished product at the Thatcher place the other day, when he was in town, and approved it.

Mrs. W. O. M.'Geehan, wife of sporting editor M'Geehan who died in New York recently, is well known in Carmel as Sophie Treadwell, which is her maiden name and has always been used by her in her writings. She is a Californian, the daughter of Judge A. B. Treadwell of San Francisco, a well known politician of the days before the big fire. Sophie Treadwell was on the staff of the Bulletin, and at one time was associate editor of the San Francisco Wasp.

In 1912, she played the Queen Ismar at the Forest Theater in Bertha Newberry's "The Toad," and until the M'Geehans moved to New York was a frequent visitor here. "Meg" as her husband was called, was sports' editor of the Chronicle, and a writer of brilliant short stories that were published frequently in Jack Bonnet's "Town Talk." He was the poet who wrote the tribute to Robert Louis Stevenson, "The Little Brone Ship," to the memorial in Portsmouth Square.

Sophie Treadwell has written several plays, two of which have had Broadway productions.

Jessie Arms Botke has her first one-man show in San Francisco, where at the Courvoisier gallery is a remarkable collection of her decorative paintings, featuring birds and fish and flowers in brilliant color. At the Ansel Adams gallery, Ralph Stackpole, scudptor, has an exhibit of drawings and working sketches of recently completed work. New paintings by the "Group of Eight" California artists are featured at the Grafton galleries. Armin Hansen, William Ritschel and Arthur Hill Gilbert are of this celebrated group, with Frank Tenney Johnson, Harold Wagner, William Wendt, Edgar Payne, and Gustav Liljestrom.

This newspaper is going to equip its advertising department with an Austin automobile that has the latest edition pasted to its sides so that all who can keep up may read. Of course, not the whole edition will be displayed free, because that would compete with our sidewalk merchants, but enough so that great curiosity will be aroused—five-cents-worth—and then people will rush to the nearest news stand and buy a whole copy.

Circulation, ho!

Once there was a barber in Carmel, a hard-guy barber, named Mickey. But he had a heart of gold, as was shown when his little car tipped over and his mother got a broken arm.

"I feel awful bad about it," said the rough-diamond huskily, "because a feller sure hates to bust his old woman's bones."

Looking over the notes we find more conversation. It is a gem of philosophy from one of Carmel's sage originals, by way of explanation when he listed himself first in a play cast. "I'm nothing if not modest—and I'm not modest."

It must be told. When she grows up, nobody will remember it, anyhow.

She was going on five, and she took great interest in the hard-working neighbor through-the-fence as he wrought with a garden. The day was warm. In warm weather lately she had heard her father and mother mention the benefits, the restfulness, of port wine and cake. Had seen them put the suggestion into practice, but what she did not know was that all of the port wine and cake had been used up.

"Oooo-hoo!" she chirruped through the fence. (She had been forbidden to go over there and get in the gentleman's way). "Would you like some port wine and cake after you've worked so hard?"

The gentleman straightened slowly. He looked fixedly. He finally took the benefit of the doubt and said most truthfully that he would. So into the house went little miss on the run.

She stayed in the house. And she kept on staying in the house. Her mother let her fight with the awful truth and figure a way of settling it all by herself. And so finally out trudged a forlorn little girl without the least trace of port wine and cake—without any social future whatever as a hostess—but with one grubby fist tightly closed over something.

Silently she went to the fence, eyed the expectant but puzzled gentleman who had ceased his labors and stood leaning on a hoe, and then she wormed through the fence and, head hanging, went up to him, opened her fist and dropped into his hand a half piece of gooey fudge, and turned and went home in despair.

To the gentleman's eternal credit, he ate the fudge, although, either through its stickiness or something else, he choked quite a bit and seemed to have great trouble with his breathing.

CARMEL ACTRESS IS IN SAN JOSE PRODUCTION

Much local interest is being shown in the Players' Guild of San Jose production today and tomorrow of "Let Us Be Gay," by Rachel Crothers, in the Francis Bacon Theater of that city.

One of the leading roles is taken by Edwina Pinkham, who was in many Carmel plays during the past year, and a number of Carmelites are making the trip to enjoy this drama of modern metropolitan life.

PRIZE PLAY IS READ ON MONDAY EVENING

"Both Your Houses," by Maxwell Anderson, a Pulitzer prize play, was read by the Carmel Play Reading Group at its informal gathering Monday evening in the lobby of the Pine Inn.

The readers included in the cast were Camilla Hargraves, F. O. Robbins, Milton Latham, Mr. and Mrs. McCreery, Philip Walker, O. W. Bardarson, Ernest Bixler, Will Williams, Wayne Edwards, Gertrude Rendtorff, Gordon Knowles, and the Messrs. Dixon, La Franz, Abercromie and Spaford. Direction was by Ann Norwood, and casting by Mrs. Ernest Bixler.

Next meeting, which like all of these gatherings is open to the public, will again be held in the Pine Inn lobby, through courtesy of owner John Jordan, and this Monday the hour will be eight o'clock.

CHURCH GUILD PLANS FOR ITS CARD PARTY

The Carmel Community Church Guild held its regular semi-monthly meeting Wednesday night. Plans were perfected for the card party to be given by the Guild on Feb. 12th, in the Manzanita Club, and after the meeting there was a surprise shower given to Mrs. Eula Douglass by a large number of her friends.

Mr. George Armitage, executive secretary of the Hawaii Tourist Bureaus is a visitor to Carmel this week.
